THE VIRGINIA DEMOCRACY.

The Democratic State Convention Committed Greeley-Resolutions Passed to Send the Delegates to Baltimore Instructed on That Point—? he Proceedings—Speeches and General Sentiment of the Gathering.

RICHMOND, June 27, 1872. The meeting of the Democratic State Convention to-day was quite harmonious, and jv:st as unani-mously in favor of the endorsement of the Cin-cinnati nominess as has been anticipated for some time past in the HERALD despatches from this city, There was not a Bourbon who did not wheel promptly, if not cheerfully, into the Greeley programme, and so strong was this sentiment among them that if a elegate had dared to oppose the support of the Philosepher of the White Hat he would, in all out of the Convention. At tweive o'clock probability, have been kicked (er the body met and was called to order in the theatre by Raleigh T. Daniel, Chairman of the State Exomittee, who called ex-Governor William Smith to the chair as temporary president, EX-GOVERNOR SMITH'S ADDRESS. taking the chair the ex-Governor said they had met for the purpose of sending delegates to the Baltimore Convention, and selecting of electors for President of the United States. The name of constitutional liberty is a "sounding brass and tinkling cymbal," and we have now to take measures to restore that liberty. No active aggressive power had been restrained by the present authorities of the United States to trample upon the liberty of the citizen. The democratic party had always been in the habit of putting up its own candidates, but now the radical party was split, and shall we hesitate to join those who had left the radical party to defeat the present party in power? In doing this we must preserve our party organization and our fidelity to our own principles. Let us go forth as a band of brothers, and as the democratic party we will beat Grant into the ground.

HE ENDORSED THE CINCINNATI NOMINER as the only hope of defeating the present administration. He was against Grant, and would vote for Jew or Gentile, dog or devil, to beat him. (An-

This expression of the ex-Governor's views tool a great many by surprise, as it was generally understood he would make a strong effort in favor of straight democratic nominees by the Baltimore Convention. The cry after the speech straight democratic nominees by the Baltimore Convention. The cry after the speech was, "Another wheel horse come into line." The roll was then called and the delegates generally took their respective places, presenting as fine an appearance as any representative body ever seen in this section. Among the delegates were such men as John R. Baldwin, Thomas S. Flournoy, Leutenant Governor John L. Marye, Thomas S. Beccek, Frankin Stearns and others. It was clear from the very beginning that the large majority, if not the entire Convention, were committed to appointing delegates to the Baltimore Convention in favor of the Cincinnatiplatform and nominees, and the work of the Convention, with the exception of adopting a platform, was regarded as already cut and dried. A committee, consisting of three from each Congressional district, was appointed on permanent organization, which retired, and during its absence Flournov's spreace on Greekley.

Thomas S. Flournoy was called upon for a speech. Upon coming on the stand he said that he had heard a good deal about the choice of evils, but he took no such view of it. There was an opportunity offered to get rid of the most accursed despotism that ever ground a people down, and he hoped that in a short time every man would go forward shoulder to shoulder in the cause of constitutional liberty. He knew Greeley personally and he could say that that old white hat of his covers the broadest head and the kwadest heart in the country. The South, without convention or meeting, had gone unanimously for Greeiey immediately after the Cincinnati Convention, and strange as it looked, when Horace Greeley became President of the United States, as he would it the people were wise, he would be indebted to the people of the South for his elevation. When the Baltimore Convention met he hoped they would adopt a resolution as follows:—"That we deem it inappropriate to make any nomination, but that we cordially endorse the action of the Cincinnati Convention." He said the campaign would be the gr

Several other gentlemen followed in brief speeches, all to the same enect, and two of the Committee on Permanent Organization reported John Goode, Jr., of Norfolk, for permanent President. The election was made unanimous. Upon being conducted to the stand Mr. Goode thanked the Convention for the honor done him. He said. You have assembled together for the purpose of making the necessary arrangements for another Presidential campaign, and he left assured this duty would be discharged with becoming dignity. Like ex-Governor Smith he believed the existence of constitutional liberty and the perpetuity of our free institutions depended on the defeat of the present administration. He then detailed the disastrous results of the legislation of the last Congress, including the Ku Kiux laws and the Enforcement acts, and then went on to sum up the outrages that had been perpetrated upon the more Southern States by the carpet-baggers and the emissaries of the administration. In the face of all this was it to be wondered that the Anglo-Saxon vote should revolt and make the grand enort that has been made to assert their inalienable rights, by coming out with upliffed brows and becoming purpose to defeat the military rule by which they have been ground down? To this we should sacrifice our prejudices and come out with our whole strength upon the Cincinnati ticket. (Applause.) It was too late now to go back upon that ticket. The Rubicon had been crossed, and the bridges had been burned behind us. We must now go forward. The tide in favor of that ticket was irresistible. It was a grand national patriotic movement, and the democratic party was coming to the aid of the liberal republicans to defeat the present corrupt administration. Every State we heard from was wheeling into line, and there was no doubt as to what the great and grand result would be. And as for Virgina, she intends to gird her ions for this fight, and would open this Presidential campaign with a vim that will insure the success of her chosen ticket. (Great appl

Evening Session.

The Convention reassembled at half-past eight o'clock, private meetings of the district delegates having been held during the recess, at which the delegates to Baltimore and the electors for the State were determined upon. The attendance was as full and enthusiastic as in the morning. General Kemper offered the following resolution:

Resolved, by the conservatives of Virginis, in Convention assembled, That we greet with lively satisfaction the movement of the liberal republicans at Cincinnati, and desire to express our sincere admiration of the moral heroism displayed by them in subordinating party to patriotism and pledge ourselves to meet their courageous and patriotic proffer of co-operation for the public deliverance in the same catchile and magnatimous spirit in which it was baddered.

Besolved, That the delegates appired by this Convention to the Democratic Convention at Baltimore should give a vigorous persistent and united support to the Greeley and Brown ticket, nominated at Cincinnati, as holding forth the faith promised of allaying the passions of the war, reviving real peace within our borders, restoring integrity to the public service, re-establishing the States in their legitimate functions in the federal system, preserving integrated the preserved of the public service, re-establishing the States in their legitimate functions in the federal system, preserving intent the great writ of liberty and rescuing the republic from the despotism of the sword.

public from the despotism of the sword.

Upon these resolutions a long and interesting debate ensued, in which the opposition wished the delegates to go to Baltimore uninstructed and be guided by events as they transpired there. This developed the fact that ex-Governor Smith was the Jeacer of the opposition, being a worful minority, but it was evident, as the discussion proceeded, that the sentiment of the Convention was so strongly in favor of sending the delegates with instructions to vote for Greeley and Brown that it was only prolonged by the desire of the speakers to speak and of the hearers to hear.

At length the following modification of the resolution was offered:—

At length the following mountestion of the Internation was offered:

Residued, That in the opinion of the Convention the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore should give an unlimited and visorous support to the Greeley and Brown ticket.

an unlimited and vigorous support to the Greeley and Brown tecket.

Thomas Bocock and John B. Baldwin led in the debate in favor of General Kemper's resolutions, and the former, referring to a point made by Governor Smith, that Virginia yesterday had not instructed her delegates, replied that while Georgians were democrats. Virginians were conservative, and there were no Toombs ranting through Virginia, nor were any Stepnens writing editorials in Virginia. Mr. Bocock made a most telling address in favor the Cincinnati Convention, which had the effect of carrying the Convention for the resolution with great enthusiasm. But it seemed impossible to reach a vote with the number of substitutes and amendments.

A Mr. Lay took the same ground as Governor

Smith and hoped the delegation would not be in-

Smith and hoped the delegation would not be instructed.

A. L. Montague favored the resolution of General Kemper, as modified; but he took Greeley and Brown just as be took quinine in an ague and fever country.

John B. Balowin stated that he found at the Fifth Avenue Hotel Conference that there was quite a party of republicans now in the North who were holding back until the Democratic National Convention gave them their support, when they would come out in a body. He advocated the passage of the resolutions as an outspoken expression of the sentiment of the people of Virginia. If the resolutions were not now passed it would go to the world as a backdown, and on this ground alone he wished their passage. He said Greeley had been granted a general amnesty by the South. His disabilities had been removed, and the Southern people intended now to go upon his bond. A vote was then taken and the required resolutions of General kunfee was unanimously carried. At midnight the Convention adjourned.

OHIO DEMOCRACY.

The Democratic State Convention in Ses sion—Full Endorsement of the Cincin-nati Nominees—The State Nominations— The Delegates Appointed to Baltimore. CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 27, 1872.

The Democratic State Convention assembled at the Rink this morning at half-past ten, and was called to order by Charles N. Allen, chairman of the State Central Committee. About five thousand people were present, the Greeley hat being the marked feature of the gathering. On motion, Colonel O. J. Dodd, of Hamilton county, was chosen

Upon taking the platform Colonel Dodd made a short speech, in which he said they had met to-day to inaugurate a new era in the political history of the State and country. He believed the platform adopted by the Cincinnati Convention, with the clear exposition as given in the letter of acceptance of Horace Greeley, gives the common ground upon which the liberal men of all parties can stand. After Colonel Dod I's speech temporary secretaries were chosen. The different committees were then announced, and the Convention adjourned until two P. M.

Afternoon Session. The Convention was called to order at half-past two o'clock by the temporary chairman, when the Committee on Permanent Organization reported for President Mr. Hugh J. Jewett, of Columbus, with a number of Vice Presidents, and E. C. Baldwin, of Clark county, for permanent Secretary, with assistants. Upon being introduced Mr. Jewett made a short speech.

The Committee on Credentials reported that every county, with one exception, was represented. The following telegram from the Illinois Democratic State Convention was read:—

Democrats of Illinois greet the democracy of Ohio, and Democrats of Illinois greet the democracy of Ohio, and astruct her delegates to vote for Greeley and Brown and trike hands with all liberal republicans.

The reading of the despatch was received with cheers, and the following reply was returned:— Cheers, and the following reply was returned:—
The democracy of Ohio send greeting to their brethren of Illinois. They have just adopted, in one of the largest conventions ever held in Ohio, resolutions affirming the Cincinnati platform, and requesting our delegates to the Baltimore Convention to vote for Greeley and Brown.
The Committee on Resolutions reported the forlowings.

lowing:—

Resolved, by the democrats of Ohio, in Convention assembled, That the platform of principles adopted by the Cincinnati Convention, together with the clear interpretation of the same enunciated in the letter of Horace Greeley, accepting the nomination of that Convention for the office of President of the United States, affords common ground upon which liberal men of all political parties can consistently unite in opposition to the present administration and its attendant official corruption.

Resolved, That our delegates this day chosen to represent us in the Democratic National Convention to assemble at Bultimore are requested to vote for the nomination of Greeley and Brown as our candidates for President.

A motion to lay the resolutions on the table was which were then agitating the country and which led to the formation of new parties. formed have been settled, and settled, as he trusts, forever. Nothing is now left but the organization, and that organization has fallen into the hands of men who seek to prostitute the name of party to their own selish ends. During his long public service it was not to be expected that he should always have acted in accordance with the views of all his constituents, and he could only claim that he had brought to the discharge of his public duties the best ability he had, and he had endeavored to discharge his duties shonestly and faithfully to the people who had frequently honored him by reelections. (Cheers.)

Senator Trumbull then alluded to public affairs. He said that within the past few years abuses had crept into the administration of the government, and referred especially to the defalcation of Paymaster Hodge, by which over $400,000 was lost, and to the abuses of the New York Custom House. He arraigned President Grant for nepotism, for gift taking, for his unwarranted interference with the rights of States, and for the military spirit which impelled him to centralize power in his own person. Such tendencies were pronounced to be full of danger to a free people, whose rights and libertices, by being gradually and insensibly abstracted from them, were in danger of being lost entirely. The Cincinnati Convention, made up of the most independent men in the country, was called to remedy the evils which threatened disaster to the republic, unless men who prized the country higher than party were boile enough to advance to the rescue. The dead past should bury its dead. A new era was dawning. Old political lines were being wiped out, and the liberal men of the two old parties were joining all over the country, as they had joined in that city to-day, to form a new party, on whose banners should be inscribed "Reform wherever needed and progress for the entire people." Civil service reform was impossible under a President who was disposed to use the vast paironage under his control to reward an army of relations

Judge Settle Amid & Rough Crowd-The Congressional Candidate for the Fifth District Threatened and His Banners Defiled.

GREENSBORO, N. C., June 27, 1872. GREENSBORO, N. C., June 27, 1872.

Judge Settle, republican candidate for Congress in the Fifth district, addressed the citizens of Caswell county at Yanceyville on Saturday last. Some of his opponents attempted to stop his speaking. They went to the stage and threatened him if he continued his speech. He defied them, and by his resolute manner prevented them from using personal violence, others of his opponents insisted on a fair hearing. This brought on a general fight among the anti-Grant men, in which rotten eggs were thrown at the American flag, with the names of Grant and Wilson and Settle printed upon it. The Judge finally made his speech. Yanceyville is the place where Senator Stephens was murdered, three years ago, by the Ku Kiux.

An Editor Resigns in Disgust at the Action of the Baton Rouge Convention. NEW ORLEANS, June 27, 1872. Colonel George W. reasons for withdrawing he says that the wishes of the republican people were thwarted by certain federal officials in the Convention, and that, too, largely by the use of the force which could be borrowed from the federal patronage in the State of Louisiana. The grand doctrines which he understands to be the very foundation, not only of the republican party, but also of all republican governments, that rulers should be selected by the people, was wantonly trampied upon, and a ticket was presented which, in a word, represents simply the preference and choice chiefly of the federal officers within this State.

BLOOMINGTON, June 24, 1872.

Hon. E. M. CHAMBERLAIN, President Columbus Convention, Boston. Mass.:—

My DEAR SIR—The National Convention of Labor Reformers, on the 22d of February last, honored me with a nomination as their candidate for the Presidency. Having regarded that movement as the initiation of a policy and purpose to unite the various political elements in a compact opposition, and consented to the use of my name before the Cincinnati Convention. where a distinguished citizen of New York was nominated—under these circumstances I deem it proper to retire absolutely from the Presidential contest, and thus leave the friends who were generous enough to offer me their voluntary support, free to obey their convictions of duty unfettered by any supposed obligation.

Sympathizing earnestly with all just and proper measures by which the condition of labor may be elevated and improved, I am, with great respect, your fellow citizen, DAVID DAVIS.

THE BONDING OF TOBACCO.

WASHINGTON, June 27, 1872. The position of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in regard to the bonding of tobacco is as follows;-

The position of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in regard to the bonding of tobacco is as follows;—

By the act of July 20, 1868, manufactured tobacco and snuff were allowed to be removed from the manufactory in bond without the payment of tax, to be transported directly to an export warehouse, it being jound that these bonded warehouses were used chiefly for the storage of tobacco to be withdrawn from home consumption, Congress determined to abolish them, and so provided in the act of June 8, just passed; that the act, except where otherwise provided, goes into effect July 1. The act of July 20, 1868, therefore, remains in full force until the 1st of July, 1872, except where specially qualified or repealed at an earlier date, by a recent act. This act of June 6 provides that all snuff and tobacco now stored in any export bonded warehouse shall, on and after July 1, 1872, be subject to the same tax as is provided by the act; and shall, within six months after the passage of the act, be withdrawn from the warehouse on payment of the tax or for export. The words "now stored" evidently refer to a different date than that of July 1, 1872, because the law says that tobacco 'now stored," whatever that may be, "shall, on and after July 1, "referring to another date evidently, the two being in contradiction, "be subject to the same tax," ac. The only intelligible rendering of the law, therefore, was to hold that "now stored" referred to the date of the passage of the law, and that tobacco stored subsequently to that date and prior to the list of July should be liable to the old tax, whether thirty-two or sixteen cents, and this decision agrees with the reason of the statute, as shown in the arguments used by the bonded warehousenen, who asked for an extension of time. They alleged before the Finance Committee of the House that if the export bonded warehouses were abolished they would have a large amount of tobacco on hand on which they would have unexpectedly to pay the tax on too short a notice to raise the amoun

Pepillo Gonzales, who lately surrendered to the government, went with his officers and a detachment of Spanish troops to the interior and captured the Cuban Majors Francisco Drago and Antonio Echemendia, Lieutenant José Aguilera and six of Garcia's men. Echemendia and Drago were executed. José Aguilera, the father of the lieutenant, surrendered the following day, with eight men, bringing thirty-one rifles. Both the Aguileras have joined the Spanlards, and will probably imitate the other Cuban officers in hunting up their late companions for execution.

The indignation of the Havana Cubans is very great, owing to the defection of Gonzales Vincente Garcia being almost inutilized. Captain Aguilera says that Garcia and sixty-five men have gone to Santiago de Cuba, having become disgusted with the conduct of some of his subordinates.
